COL. ROBT. M. KELLY
DIES IN LOUISVILLE

Col. R. M. Kelly, for many years editor of the Louisville Commercial, and one of the best-known men in the State, died at his home in Louisville, Saturday, following a brief illness.

Robert Morrow Kelly was born in Paris Ky., September 22, 1836, the son of Thomas and Cordelia (Morrow) Kelly. He obtained his early education in the private schools of Paris, and for several years of his young manhood he taught school here. Pursuing his studies and education at home, he qualified himself for the practice of law and was admitted to the Bourbon county bar in 1860.

Then the Civil War broke out. Leaving his practice the young Kelly accepted a commission as Captain of a company in the Fourth Kentucky Infantry, United States Volunteers. So valiant was his service and so proficient was he in things military that Capt. Kelly became Col. Kelly before the war had ended. He commanded the regiment in which he had first enlisted.

After the war Col. Kelly was married to Miss Harriet Holley Warfield, of Lexington, on June 27, 1867. He was married at the home of the parents of the bride. Col. Kelly had resumed his law practice at Paris, but he could not long remain in retirement. In 1866 he was appointed Collector of Internal Revenue in the Seventh district, with headquarters at Lexington. Appointed by President Johnson he served until 1870.

In the latter year he moved to Louisville as editor of the Commercial. There, with a brief intermission, he served as editor-in-chief until 1897. During his editorship Col. Kelly made his mark as one of the most brilliant men who ever served in any public capacity in Louisville. He served for some time as president of the Kentucky Press Association.

From 1873 to 1886 Col. Kelly was U. S. Pension Agent at Louisville. He left the office during President Cleveland's first administration in a flourishing and excellent condition. Since his retirement from active life, his last occupation being his editorship, he had been superintendent of the U. S. National Cemetery, adjoining Cave Hill cemetery in Louisville.

Col. Kelly is survived by his widow. He also leaves two sons, Elisha W. Kelly, now financial editor of the New York World, and Robert Morrow Kelly, Jr., in the iron brokerage business in Louisville, and three daughters, Mrs. C. C. Mengel, Jr., of Louisville, and Miss Nettie Kelly, of New York.

His death is attributed to intense grief over the tragic death of his son, Lieut. Hugh M. Kelly, of the United States army, who was killed recently by falling from an aeroplane.

The funeral services were held at his late home, Sunday, and the interment took place in the Cave Hill cemetery, near the resting place of his son Hugh's body.

NEGROES WHO HELD UP
WHITE MAN ARE ARRESTED.

James Doty, an employee of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, was held up and robbed Saturday night by three negro men in East Paris. The highwaymen secured a watch, a pair of shoes, socks and a small amount of money. The matter was placed in the hands of the police.

A relative of Mr. Doty's Saturday night saw a negro in the saloon of T. F. Brannon making an effort to dispose of a watch, which he recognized. Special policeman Thomas Craven was notified and the negro was placed under arrest. He gave his name as Henry Wade. Later in the night Patrolman Fred Link took into custody Bud Shawhan, a negro, who hails from Springfield, O., and early Sunday morning arrested Walker Harris, at the home of his brother in Buckerville, a negro suburb.

All of the property taken from Doty was recovered and the men identified as being those who committed the robbery. Harris yesterday confessed and the men were arraigned in police court yesterday morning, their case being set for trial Tuesday afternoon.

TOBACCO CROP SOLD TO LOCAL
MEN FOR 14 3/4 CENTS POUND.

Mr. John M. Brennan, of Bourbon, sold recently a barn of ten acres of tobacco to Abnee & Mussionin, the local tobacco men for 14 3/4 cents per pound, straight. The crop was grown by Mr. Gray and made an average of about 1,300 pounds to the acre. Mr. Brennan had in cultivation last year nearly thirty acres of tobacco, all of which has been disposed of with the exception of the product of seven acres, at prices equally as good as that received for the crop of Mr. Gray. Next season he will grow about thirty-five acres of tobacco.

STAMP SALES AT LOCAL POST OFFICE INCREASE $500

Local postoffice officials are busily engaged in compiling the quarterly report which will be forwarded the department on January 1. The report, while incomplete, shows a vast increase over the same period of last year. During the month of December the stamp sales at the local office was about $500 in excess of the amount sold during the same month last year. This is due in a great measure to the increase in the parcel post business at the Paris office.
